

New Opportunities in Drowning Prevention for Fatality Review Teams

Applications Open

The National Center for Fatality Review and Prevention is expanding its Drowning Prevention Pilot Program and is recruiting established Child Death Review (CDR) teams to participate in our next cohort.

This paid opportunity is designed to strengthen local prevention work by supporting teams to analyze drowning-related deaths more effectively and develop targeted, actionable prevention strategies in their communities.

Contact drowning@ncfrp.org to learn more!

Why participate?

Paid participation, enhanced training & technical assistance, and strengthened local partnerships

Review drowning deaths in your tribal community, identify prevention opportunities, join learning sessions, and share findings & lessons learned

What will teams do?

New and established CDR teams, tribes interested in expanding local prevention efforts, and communities experiencing drowning-related deaths or risks

Who should apply?

